Western Connecticut Academy of International Studies Elementary Magnet School

The early years of elementary school are crucial to the way children define the world and their place in it. The Western Connecticut Academy of International Studies is an innovative and challenging elementary magnet school designed to begin preparing children in Grades K through 5 to live and thrive in a global community.

With the instructional theme of International Studies, the Academy offers youngsters from the school districts of Brookfield, Danbury, New Fairfield, Newtown, New Milford and Redding an exciting multinational educational adventure.

The Academy is the child's "passport" to learning about the global community. They begin learning and using Spanish from kindergarten. The extensive use of technology enables our children to travel the world on a virtual electronic journey.

Using various teaching strategies and an integrated approach to learning, teachers challenge each child to perform at their highest levels.

As they study at the Academy, students acquire and demonstrate developmentally appropriate mastery of core content matter. They apply that knowledge in contexts that relate to foreign countries, their cultures, traditions, economies, and geographic/ historic frameworks.

As the program of study gives the student an international perspective on knowledge, the school community itself provides a climate of localized individual nurturing. Enrollment of students who represent the diversity of the partner school districts heightens the child/s appreciation for human differences.

Together the school instructional program and the school climate will enhance children's comprehension of their relationship to their personal community and to the world community. The collaboration of parents, community, and school enhances learning opportunities for students. Parents participate actively in the operation of various Academy components.

The child learns about the world in an environment of trust and acceptance among students and adults. By the end of the 5th grade in the Academy of International Studies, the students understand and appreciate that global citizenship begins with responsible citizenship in one's own world.
